What's New In?

Private Internet Access (PIA) is a world-famous VPN provider that was established in 2005. It aims to provide its users with an environment that, despite the fact that it consists of servers all over the globe, protects their privacy online from prying eyes and the law. This VPN is compatible with both Windows and Mac systems which allows people to enjoy top-notch online privacy using their favourite operating system of choice. It even supports mobile devices and even TVs! This VPN interface allows users to enjoy everything they love online -without having to worry about the safety of their IP addresses. They can even be anonymous while browsing the Internet thanks to a dedicated Tor integration feature. But that's not all: it also offers users a dedicated browser plugin which allows them to access many of the popular privacy-promoting extensions that are currently available for other browsers. This extension was developed and tested by Private Internet Access itself to deliver the best VPN experience possible. According to the official extension page, it is compatible with all the major versions of Firefox. Once installed, users can enjoy Private Internet Access in their browser -whether they use Mozilla's Firefox or Google's Chrome, both of which are based on the WebKit rendering engine. What's more, it even supports Windows users through the use of the OpenVPN ActiveX Control (API). This means that users can enjoy the superior anonymity, security, and privacy features of Private Internet Access while they are using Windows too! Private Internet Access is compatible with Windows systems only. Mac systems are not supported by Private Internet Access. Private Internet Access is compatible with all major browsers (Chrome, Firefox, Opera, Safari, and Internet Explorer). Users can enjoy the full functionality of Private Internet Access with a few simple clicks. The Private Internet Access settings are: 1. Connect 2. Preferences 3. About Plugins 4. Help 5.
