On April 5, 1999, Mr. Walker visited the October-Models website. The site contained a photograph of Jane Doe 1 wearing a bikini, with her arms around a man. Mr. Walker reported the post to the police. Mr. Walker testified that, upon viewing the photograph, he felt excited because he thought it was his daughter, his wife, and his son; it was not. He returned to the website again the following day, April 6, 1999, to examine the photographs of Jane Doe 2. The second photograph on the October-Models website was that of Jane Doe 2, wearing the same bathing suit as Jane Doe 1. Mr. Walker testified that he was excited upon viewing the photographs; it was his daughter and son. He testified that he saw the photographs at his desk, and he concluded his viewing by going to the restroom. While he was in the restroom, however, Jane Doe 2 appeared on a computer screen. Dr. David Diamond, a psychologist, testified that the relationship between the Webmaster, David Doekler, and Jane Doe 2 would be characterized by a pattern of intermittent interaction. The maximum level of sexual excitement would last for four to five hours, with an interval of at least an hour between peak levels. During the intervals between the peak sexual states, the level of arousal would be such that Jane Doe 2 would still be experiencing sexual excitement, but much less intense than at the peak times. There are generally two types of Internet activity that have an erotic element: erotic chat and virtual sexual intercourse. Virtual sexual intercourse was introduced to Jane Doe 2 on the computer screen at the bathroom. It was the first time Jane Doe 2 had ever seen a virtual sexual intercourse. At that time, she asked the Webmaster if the two could do it together, to which he responded that he would get out of the way, and that she should do it to herself. At trial, Mr. Walker admitted that he was not technically skilled enough to enable the virtual sexual intercourse. *897 Dr. Diamond testified that he had not interviewed Jane Doe 2 or examined her, but that he based his opinion on the evidence from the trial and the Webmaster's testimony that he had had sex with Jane Doe 2 and that she was willing to have sex. In his opinion, Jane Doe 2 was a sexual predator. The act of virtual sexual 82157476af
